

113 So. Hudson Ave.
Pasadena, Calif.
July 16, 1937.

My dear Miss Wilson -

Understanding
that you are a bookplate collector,
I am enclosing copies of mine. Strangely enough, someone else sent me a copy of yours before I got around to writing you, but I thought you might possibly have some duplicates.
Be that as it may, I am glad to send you mine, which is very

MISS HELEN LOUISE TAYLOR
113 SO. HUDSON AVE.
PASADENA, CALIFORNIA

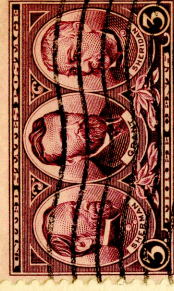

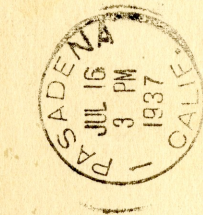

Miss Helen Wilson
909 E. Washington
Washington,
D.C.

3. For travel, as do the figures of Mercury, who is fastening his sandal in preparation for another flight, typifying my state of mind between trips. The pens show a slight talent in writing, and the books are my profession — librarian in a local junior high school.

My collection is still quite small, but I hope to enlarge it gradually. I find my new hobby a fascinating one. One receives

2. new. It represents, just of all, my home (as I believe yours does, too, does it not?). The tree is a pepper, none of which line the street in front of the house. The cat is my pet, Boots, whose recreation is crawling into the space left when books are removed from a shelf. Quite literary, don't you think? The seal at the top is that of my Alma Mater, Pomona College. The globes indicate my love

MISS HELEN LOUISE TAYLOR
113 SO. HUDSON AVE.
PASADENA, CALIFORNIA

Miss Helen Wilson
909 E. Washington
Washington,
Iowa

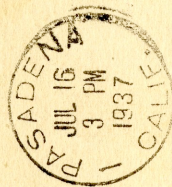

4.

letters from such interesting people.

Cordially yours,

Helen Louise Taylor

MISS HELEN LOUISE TAYLOR
113 SO. HUDSON AVE.
PASADENA, CALIFORNIA

Miss Helen Wilson
909 E. Washington
Washington,
D.C.