

Free well tests

Free well tests will be offered to Louisa County residents of the Muscatine Island area from August through September. The free tests are provided by the Geode Resource Conservation and Development and will check for coliform bacteria and nitrates in the water.

The tests are being offered to help determine the quality of Muscatine Island's water supply.

The Geode RC & D has hired Paul Elshoff to test the wells of willing households and record information on the water's use (how deep is the well, how many people use the well, etc.).

Louisa County residents of the Muscatine Island area who would like their well tested should call the Louisa County Soil and Water Conservation District at 523-6411.
