It was 20 years ago that the Davis County Soil Conservation District was formed. The district was formed to further conservation practices in Davis County, which at that time were very few. In the 20 short years that the district has been in existence, the changes in Davis County conservation practices have been great. Terraces, ponds and grass waterways have appeared on the rural landscapes. Now the Soil Conservation District has begun work on the Big Wyacondah Watershed and has also completed planning on two other Watersheds. These watersheds will eventually control the water flow of these drainage basins and provide a better means of preventing soil erosion. The merchants of Bloomfield join hands in congratulating the Soil Conservation District on its 20th anniversary. And we wish the district much success in the future years to come in its attempt to improve the rural land of Davis County.
