

Win Conservation Awards

Both county and regional awards were distributed last week to winners in the 1962 Soil Conservation Achievement contest. Plaques donated by the Bloomfield Newspapers went to both county winners (from left), Iles Heady in the owner-operator class, and Mrs. J. A. Baughman and her son Stanley in the landlord-tenant class. The Des Moines Register presented barometers as regional awards and Heady received a wrist watch as the regional sweepstakes winner. The presentations were made at the annual banquet sponsored by the Soil Conservation District here.

Conservation Award

Iles Heady (right), farmer of near Floris and one of those helping to establish the local Soil Conservation District in the early 1940's, Monday was awarded the WMT Stations Soil Conservation Award by Bob Nance, farm director for the Cedar Rapids radio and television stations. Heady was one of six receiving plaques for outstanding work in conservation.
