DUNKERTON

The charcoal-black vertical cloud column lumbering east out of Dunkerton, and the blown-out superstructure of Marv's Feed and Seed, left little doubt as to what had just ripped across northern Black Hawk County Thursday night.

"It was a tornado," resident Dennis Joens said matter-of-factly. "City Hall's busted to pieces right up there and the elevator (Marv's) is all knocked down. ... I was in my front yard. It came right over my house. I thought it was going to hit the (Farmers State) Bank. It was just black. ... I started beating it back into the house."

In fact, multiple tornadoes or funnels were reported, resulting in two serious injuries, flattening a church and several homes, making for some harrowing moments for an area hit by severe floods just a year ago.

The tornadoes were part of a strong, slow-moving storm system that churned across the county's northern edge, spawning as many as 13 tornadoes or funnel clouds, according to sightings reported to the National Weather Service.

Gov. Tom Vilsack postponed four bill-signing ceremonies today in western Iowa and was expected instead to tour the damage in Black Hawk County.

The storm system destroyed numerous homes, farms and commercial buildings and the newly remodeled St. John's Lutheran Church on Bennington Road. Black Hawk County's Country View care facility on Dunkerton Road was partially evacuated.

Hospitals and Clinics this morning. A mentally disabled rural Dunkerton man caught outside in the storm, Sam Mills, 29, was also hospitalized at Allen Hospital with a broken leg.

According to Tony Thompson with the Black Hawk County Sheriff's Office, six to 10 buildings received moderate to severe damage countywide and another two to five were heavily damaged or destroyed.

In addition to the two serious injuries reported, Allen Hospital Vice President Chris Thomas said four people were brought to the emergency room for storm-related injuries, but all were treated and released. Covenant Medical Center said one person was treated at the hospital for a minor injury related to the storm. The Associated Press reported a total of 10 injuries.

Church hit

The 120-year-old St. John's Lutheran Church, which volunteers had just finished remodeling, and three adjacent farms, were destroyed when the storm hit about 7 p.m.

The church's steeple was blown over and the attached parish hall was destroyed. A picnic shelter behind the church was also destroyed.

"There's a hole that's big enough to drive a bus down," said church president Roger Dedor.

Jim Madden, a member of the church, saw the tornado coming.

"I watched the steeple come up in the air and come back down," he said. "It's laying back about 20 feet on the roof in between the annex and church. The peak went through the roof."

"I cried this morning," said the Rev. Dean Williams, the church's pastor. "We have a great, great bunch of people. We'll pull together and help each other, but right now I feel shell-shocked. I spent two years in Vietnam, and I don't remember feeling this devastated."

Nearby farms were leveled by the tornado. "There's absolutely nothing left of these three places, the basement is about it," said Madden.

KWWL will air shows cut by storm coverage

WATERLOO - Thursday's tornado picked a bad TV night to pay a destructive visit on northern Black Hawk County.

Heavily promoted hour-long episodes of NBC's "Friends," "Frasier" and "ER" were kept off the air Thursday due to KWWL-TV's coverage of the massive storm cell over Black Hawk County that caused damaging tornadoes.

KWWL General Manager Jim Waterbury announced this morning the dates and times of the rebroadcasts of the three shows:

- Friends will air at 5 p.m. Saturday following the NBA game. If the game runs late, it will air at the end of the game.

- ER will air at 6 p.m. Saturday, or following Friends.

- Frasier will air at 10:30 p.m. Sunday, following the 10 p.m. news.

Waterbury attempted to get permission from NBC network officials to rerun the episodes during primetime on another night, but was unsuccessful. Such a move would have meant dropping other NBC network programming.

He said the station will be heavily promoting the times of the shows being rebroadcast.

the church is rebuilt. Williams said several churches in Readlyn, Waterloo and Dunkerton have offered space.

At another residence near the church, Steve Mills felt helpless as he watched the funnel cloud head straight toward his mother's house at Mount Vernon and Elk Run roads. Pauline Mills was not at home, but Steve's wife was on the phone with his brother, Sam, pleading with him to get down into the basement. Sam, 29, is mentally disabled and doesn't speak.

Mills could do nothing about his brother's safety as he watched the funnel approach.

"I could see the tornado just come right up on it, then it was just all black and debris," Mills said.

Mills lives just east of his mother's house and watched as the tornado turned north, wiped out three more farm houses and then lifted up. As soon as all was clear, he made his way through debris to look for his brother.

He called out for Sam, and eventually found him buried under debris in the pit carved out where the twister had ripped a large pine tree from the ground.

"He doesn't give any hugs or anything, but I climbed in that hole and he cried and gave me a big hug," Mills said.

The house had been obliterated. Much of it collapsed on the basement, but Sam never made it there. Instead he was picked up and thrown along with the house into the yard.

"He rode that house out," Mills said.

Sam Mills is recovering at Allen Hospital. He suffered a broken leg and numerous abrasions and lacerations.

North of the Mills farm lies what used to be the Kenneth Ohrt farmstead. Kenneth and Evelyn Ohrt lived in one house, and their daughter, Carol, lived with her husband, Gary Burguard, in another.

Both homes were flattened. The Burguards had not been home, but according to neighbors, Kenneth and Evelyn Ohrt rode out the tornado and escaped with only minor injuries.

Carol Burguard clutched some photos, a trophy and a guitar caked with mud as firefighters ordered them to leave the area this morning. A propane tank, recently filled with 300 gallons, had a leak and the area was evacuated.

"We're just in limbo here, we don't know what to do," Burguard said.

The family had just found their pony dead between piles of wood, some from the barn and more from the house.

Between the Mills farm and the Ohrt farm lies St. John's Lutheran Church of Bennington. There, some headstones in the cemetery were toppled. The roof had collapsed in the church itself, but the structure still stood this morning.

City Hall flattened

The storm was the second punch of a double whammy for the city of Dunkerton, which was hit by a flash flood on Crane Creek almost exactly a year ago and has still been recovering from that damage. The city is in the middle of a federally funded buyout of flood-damaged homes.

A temporary City Hall, set up in a trailer-type structure nine months ago after the 1999 flood, started to collapse Thursday as city workers were inside removing computer equipment. Dunkerton Ambulance volunteer emergency medical technician Barb Nesbit was one of them.

"We were in there getting all that computer stuff out, putting it into a (Chevrolet) Suburban, and you could tell that the ceiling was parting," Nesbit said. "A guy that works for the city said we had to get out. The floors buckled. Rain was coming in all over. But we did get most of the electrical stuff out."

"We got that building from FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency) when we got flooded out a year ago," Nesbit said. "Water was coming in from the ceiling; the windows broke out. Pretty sad."

Dunkerton City Council member Monica Smith said the council plans an emergency meeting today to determine where to put city offices now. Additionally, she said a Kwik Star across the street from Marv's Feed & Seed apparently sustained some damage, and employees "did the right thing" and took refuge in a bathroom at the rear of the convenience store until the storm blew over.

Smith said the city is fortunate most of the severe damage appeared to be confined to the city's south end, but this storm on the heels of last year's flood was a most unwelcome event.

"But what do you do? You have to keep going. You can't stop," she said.

South Dunkerton resident Joens said the funnel he spotted skipped over the Farmers State Bank, snapped off several trees behind his house and took out a section of bleachers from the Dunkerton High School football field, depositing them in neighboring backyards.

"It was just there, black. We all went in the basement and it just got quiet," he said.

Others weren't as lucky. Dunkerton Fire Chief Dale Steffen said one person was injured when a house was destroyed. The individual was transported to a local hospital. The person's identity and severity of injuries weren't immediately known. Power lines were down all over town, he said, and the city was without power.

Dunkerton Schools closed today due to the storms, though the school didn't appear to be extensively damaged.

"All of the bus windows and school vehicle windows were broken out," said Julie Delegardelle, secretary to Superintendent Rich Wede. "Quite a few field trips and events were scheduled for today. They were canceled," she said.

The twister hit between 8:15 and 8:30 p.m. Thursday, and left as fast as it arrived, residents said. Asked how the damage compared to last year's devastating flash flood of Crane Creek, Steffen said, "I don't know. This was faster. It happened and was over with faster than that (the flood) did."

Sara Herman, whose husband is a volunteer firefighter, saw the tornado headed straight for their house near the Wapsipinicon River northeast of town. "It was on the ground until it hit the Wapsi. When it hit the Wapsi, it went back up right over my house. All I had to see was all my stuff was blowing in the wrong direction from the wind. Bad sign."

"I thought, 'My stuff's going to get sucked up again,'" said Herman, referring to Thursday's storm and last year's flash flood.

Council member Smith's daughter-in-law, Laurie Smith said the tornado passed within three blocks of her house. Last year, Crane Creek flood waters came up to the front steps of her family's home.

"That's just too close. Too many incidents," Laurie Smith said.

She and her husband were shopping at Crossroads Center in Waterloo when sirens sounded. With their three children at home with Laurie's mother-in-law, and Darrin's city responsibilities, they needed to get back to Dunkerton. But they barely avoided being locked in the mall when it closed after storm warning sirens sounded.

She found the children and her mother-in-law safe in the basement when they arrived, about 10 minutes after the storm had passed through. "We'd been calling and they didn't answer because there was no phone in the basement. ... I didn't care about anything else. I just wanted to get home," she said.

Neighbors said the tornado passed within three blocks of the Smiths' house, which is near the Dunkerton Fire Department.

Some 5,000 homes in Black Hawk, Buchanan and Fayette counties lost power due to Thursday's storms, several utilities serving those areas reported. Work continued to restore power to between 1,100 and 1,600 of them yet this morning.

The Hawkeye Chapter of the Red Cross opened a shelter last night at the U.S. Marine headquarters, 1689 Burton Ave., but had no takers, said Lorie Glover, director of emergency services.

She said the shelter would probably only stay open until midday unless people came in needing assistance. She said the organization would have mobile feeding vans delivering meals to utility workers and crews removing downed trees from roadways.

Faith survives storm

Polly Mills saves son, loses material things in tornado that swept through area

By TOM OWEN
Courier Staff Writer

WATERLOO

Polly Mills has recovered five of the Bibles she lost in the tornado May 11.

That still means three or four Bibles are missing — she can't be sure of the exact number.

Not surprising. For Mills — a member of Glad Tidings Assembly of God Church in Cedar Falls — Christianity is more than just something that occurs on Sundays.

"It's what drives me," she said.

Over the years, her faith has shown itself in many ways, friends say. It has driven her to bake food for people in her neighborhood who suffered a death in the family. It has led her to cook meals at the Salvation Army.

And on May 11, faith steeled her to drive into the teeth of a tornado to aid her disabled son, Sam, 29, who lives with her north of Waterloo.

Now, despite the loss of her home and most of her belongings, and her son's rapidly mounting medical bills, the 70-year-old sees that day in positive terms.

"I'm going to put this together for (the inspirational magazine) Guideposts one day — all of these tales that keep coming back to me now," she said with a chuckle.

When at least two tornadoes swept through Black Hawk County the night of May 11, Mills was at a social gathering with her former minister and some friends. After it broke up about 7:15 p.m., she drove north on Highway 63 toward her rural Dunkerton home. She soon saw law enforcement officers stopped along the road, turning cars southward.

She also saw a giant black wall of clouds just to the north. It was heading east toward her home and Sam, who is mentally retarded and cannot speak. Her goal was to reach her son before the

"I guess you are supposed to stop and let the tornado go by," she said "I didn't give it right of way."

To avoid the officers on Highway 63, Mills turned and drove east on Airline Highway. She battled the strong winds buffeting her car.

"I was driving fast," she said. "I was just trying to hold the car on the road."

When she arrived at the corner of Dunkerton and Elk Run roads — a half mile south of her home on Elk Run Road — she saw a Dunkerton Fire and Rescue truck. It was blocking off the area as rushing winds blew a steady stream of dirt and sticks through the air.

She stopped for a second and tried to yell something through her closed car window, then raced by the crew.

Bob Steffen, one of the firefighters in the truck, said the tornado was less than 200 feet from Mills' house when she arrived at the intersection. The funnel's southern edge was about a quarter mile north of his truck, he said.

After Mills drove by, it appeared to Steffen she went right into the funnel cloud.

"I saw her car disappear in the cloud," he said. "Then I saw her brake lights go on and off a few times. Then I couldn't see anything but the debris blowing around."

Steffen radioed for an ambulance, figuring she would end up injured, or worse.

He then drove after her, staying behind the swirling storm of debris.

"I didn't know what to expect, to be honest," he said. "I knew I had to get over there to help her, or find her, or whatever the case may have been."

To his surprise, when he was about an eighth of a mile from Mills' home, he saw her standing outside what appeared to be a house. But the damage was so severe, he had to ask her if that was a home.

At about that time, Steve Mills — Polly's other son, who lives a mile away — drove his truck through the fields to the scene. He found Sam about 100 feet from the house, in a hole created by an uprooted tree. He had been thrown to a semi-soft landing on the upturned soil.

An ambulance from Waterloo arrived to take him to Allen Hospital.

Today, Mills tells that story in a matter-of-fact tone and seems surprised when asked if she worried for her safety.

"My son was there," she said sternly. "If you had a son, you'd know how you'd feel."

She doesn't have time for others' attempts at consolation.

"My life has been so much easier than everyone else's," she said. "I have no money complaints. So, we all have troubles — so what?"

Now Mills spends most of her time at Sam's side at Allen Hospital, where he faces six weeks of healing and rehabilitation for a broken leg mended by screwing a metal rod into the bone.

His recovery is going well, but that is not the end of Mills' worries. Her friends and relatives say she is too proud to admit the tornado has left her in a tough financial position.

Since her husband died in 1973, Mills has lived on income from her son's 100-acre farm and, more recently, Social Security. Sam has lived with her since childhood, supported only by Social Security disability benefits.

Some of her son's hospital bills will be paid by Medicare, but she'll have to dig deep to pay her share.

"When they present the bill, I'll drop dead of shock, and we'll go from there," she said.

Instead of dwelling on her problems, Mills is counting the ways God shined on her during the tornado. She points out that Sam ignored advice to hide in the southwest corner of the basement, as authorities often recommend. The southwest corner of the basement caved in, creating a big pile of rubble.

"That's exactly where we would have gone if I had been there, and we both would have been killed," Mills said.

Also, she notes Sam landed in the hole of the uprooted tree, rather than against the tree, which could have injured him severely or killed him.

"He could have blown to Kingdom Come," she said. "He's just a little bitty thing; the wind could have taken him."

And last, her son Steve's family was spared from the storm, even though he lives nearby.

"God was in control of everything," she said. "He doesn't need to explain what he does."

Mills' family continues to search through the rubble of her home. Family members have recovered her grandmother's German Bible and two large pictures of her grandparents. She's still missing her mother's jewelry and her wedding ring, along with most of her other possessions. But she shrugs off those losses and plans on rebuilding on the same land.

Friends said they are not surprised she is not pitying herself, since her focus has always been on others.

For the past 20 years, Mills has been stopping at the Salvation Army two times a week to help prepare meals for the needy.

"That's the kind of person she is," said Paul Strayer, a fellow Salvation Army volunteer. "She sees a need, and she does it. She has a tremendous faith and sees that God has a purpose in all this, so she goes about her business."

After surviving the tornado, Mills is just thankful her family's intact.

"Give God the credit," she said. "He likes that."

DUNKERTON

Cowering in the basement, Ken and Evelyn Ohrt and their son Dennis heard the tornado smash their farmstead to bits.

According to a neighbor who timed it, the tornado hovered over the Ohrts' house for more than three minutes, churning buildings like a giant blender. Ken heard the unmistakable squeaking sound of nails being pulled out of their boards.

"That's when I told them, 'There goes the house,'" he said.

The house was gone minutes later.

The twister cut a groove along the northern edge of Black Hawk County May 11, 2000, damaging or flattening at least 20 buildings before disappearing over Dunkerton.

Marilyn Whitesell, 72, suffered the greatest loss. She died in a hospital bed 17 days after the tornado passed, flattening her rural Cedar Falls home and trapping her under a pile of rubble.

One year later, those who survived that afternoon have slowly recovered.

The Ohrts and Polly Mills, their neighbor to the south, have slowly rebuilt their damaged farmsteads. St.

Polly and Sam Mills

On May 11, Polly Mills, 71, was at a social gathering with her former minister and some friends.

Driving home on Highway 63, she saw a funnel cloud heading toward her house.

Ignoring a Dunkerton Fire and Rescue blockade, she raced toward the tornado, knowing her son Steve was home.

When she arrived, the tornado had already flattened Mills' home. Steve was OK, but his mentally disabled brother Sam, who was inside the house when the tornado struck, was thrown 100 feet away. Luckily Sam suffered only a broken leg and frazzled nerves.

Like the Ohrts, Mills feels blessed by the army of volunteers who helped her pick up the pieces. But putting Sam's life back together has been more difficult.

During two surgeries, doctors put a plate around his leg fastened by screws. Sam broke his leg a second time during rehabilitation, sending him back to Allen Hospital.

He had four more surgeries by the end of October. Since then, Sam's leg has healed steadily. Polly expects him to quit using a wheelchair in six weeks or so.

Sam's recovery is her main concern.

"He's been really good about it, except he's been in a lot of pain toward the end," she said. "The pins were really bothering him."

Even so, Mills noted her family could have suffered a far worse fate. God has buoyed her spirits in recovering from the storm.

"There were so many prayers for us," she said. "Without it, we wouldn't have been able to survive. I don't think it was a terrible time. Sammy handled it better than I did. ... Sammy's injury was just devastating. There was always the possibility he could lose the leg. They never said it, but it was always in the back of my mind."

The storm took most of Polly's keepsakes, such as scrapbooks and Bibles. She recovered a lot of it nearby, but the storm has reminded her how little material possessions mean.

"Seventy years of accumulation, and in five minutes, it was gone," she said.

A special fund her relatives organized will pay for all of Sam's bills, Polly said. Volunteers helped her rebuild her house, which meant her modest insurance policy will be enough to pay for it.

On the storm's one-year anniversary, Mills plans to hold a special party to honor the people who helped her.

"I'm going to be prepared for 300, and if more show up, I'll have food to prepare for it," she said.

Souvenir from America, a cocker spaniel from New Hartford, is ready for a breeding career in Russia if owner Marianne Minks can find a way to get him to Moscow.

Iowa dog's road to Russia blocked

By ELIZABETH BLOOM
Courier Staff Writer

NEW HARTFORD — It seems like a simple proposition: Russian dog breeder wants American dog, Russian dog breeder contacts American breeder, American dog breeder sends dog.

It's the part in between that has Marianne Minks of New Hartford and Ludmila Fomina of Moscow stymied.

Minks' Souvenir from America is a 6-month-old, black-and-white bundle of energy, just panting to meet some Russian females of the spaniel persuasion. Both Fomina and Minks believe he will be the first American-bred cocker spaniel in Russia — if he ever gets there.

Minks isn't sure exactly how her Russian counterpart was referred to her, though it might have been from ads Minks has in Dog World magazine and the two cocker spaniel breed publications.

Fomina, the president of a major dog club in Moscow, has three other cockers, two from Denmark and one from Switzerland. Those dogs, though, are considered "coarse" by American standards, with bigger bones and size.

See DOG / page B3

Fomina hopes Minks's dog will improve the look of her stock, plus produce Russia's first two-colored cockers. It's taken Minks three years to come up with just the right male, which she decided to give to Fomina.

"I like males to be more masculine," Minks said as the young dog squirmed in her lap. "But he's just what she needs for her breeding program."

The dog would have gone over this summer, but Minks has spent months trying to untangle the regulations, requirements and red tape involved in sending an animal to Russia. She thought it would be easier after the breakup of the Soviet Union, but it's simply added up to more confusion.

A German airline said the dog would be considered excess freight, which means he would wait in Europe until space opened on a plane.

A worker at one U.S. airline admitted that they weren't sure what the regulations would be because no one had ever tried to send an animal to Russia from that airport before.

Only Aeroflot will take the dog in baggage, but both Minks and Fomina have doubts about the reliability of the Russian airline since the Soviet breakup.

Worried by the variety of answers, and not wanting to see the dog end up in Siberia, Minks decided the best course would be to find someone going to Russia who might take the dog.

Calls to the state's three universities, various agricultural groups and even John Crystal's office, however, have produced no travelers willing to tote a dog. Most are worried they'll be locked up for hours in Russian customs, though Fomina has assured Minks she has ties that will make for a smooth entrance into the country.

One American official, completely puzzled by Minks's request, asked why she didn't just take the dog to the Humane Society if she was having trouble finding a home for him.

Ultimately, it may take having Fomina come to the United States to get the dog. "I think she'd really enjoy it," Minks said.

Fomina also has a reward waiting for all of Minks's work. It is the local custom, she said, to repay a gift in kind, so she plans to send her a Black Russian terrier, a breed developed locally.

A book Fomina sent Minks shows a large, curly-haired, bearded dog that looks like a cross between an Airedale and a Clydesdale horse. Only two other households in the United States are known to have the breed, Minks said.

Ernie and Kendra Mobley - Co-owners of J&B Restaurant

New Hartford Family Opens New Restaurant In Vacant Building

"It Would Have Been Torn Down If Nothing Was Done"

New Hartford's newest business J&B Restaurant has recently opened at 420 Packwaukee Street (Main Street). Co-owners Ray and Sharon Mobley and Ernie and Kendra Mobley spent many long days remodeling a vacant building to make the adventure come true. "The building was empty and would have been torn down if nothing was done", commented Ray Mobley, who is Ernie's father. "We got into remodeling the building with our intentions of putting a business in the location," Ray went on. "As we continued our many hours of hard work a restaurant seemed to be the business to be located in the building," he added. The restaurant seemed the most practical to the Mobleys since years ago they owned and operated Sharons Corner Cafe in New Hartford. The initials of "J&B" comes from the sons of Ernie and Kendra, Jacob and Blake.

The building itself has had a major face-lift. The original 100 year old tin ceiling has been restored and walls have been redone and decorated with historical pictures of New Hartford. A new floor was also put into place.

"We hope to come across as a home-town restaurant operated by down to earth people," explained Ray. The restaurant serves lemon water will all meals and serves 18 oz. pop to it customers. And for the french fry lovers - they serve fresh cut french fries. "Where else can you get a 12 oz. T-bone steak dinner for $8.95," added Ernie. The restaurant has a seating capacity for 70 and is a "smoke-free" environment. The restaurant serves nightly specials Tuesday through Saturday with Thursday featuring "all-you-can-eat" fish fry for $4.95. The business is also open on Sunday from 7:00 a.m. to 1:00 for breakfast and lunch. They are closed on Monday, but are available for banquet reservations that day as well as Sunday evening. To make reservations call 319-983-2304.

Ray is no stranger to the business world. He has owned and operated the Countryside Greenhouse for many years. "We try to run the business between the four of us to make it go", explained Ray. "It was very busy at first but has tapered off some with all of the school activities happening", he added. "We hope people will come in and say hello and give us a try, we know they'll be back" Ray went on.

"I may be retired, but I sure seem busy," Ray explained with a smile on his face. Ray went on to say he would like to build a community building on his lot which is located north of J&B Restaurant. "Maybe some day we will be able to have our annual firemen's dance in town then," Ernie added.

Country Side Greenhouse Re-locates In New Hartford

Ray and Sharon Mobley are putting are putting the final touches on their business "Country Side Greenhouse" now located on Packwaukee Street in New Hartford.

The Mobleys' decided to build the new greenhouse in town following a destructive fire at the former location northwest of New Hartford last December.

"We will have just as many plants as last year," commented Ray. "We are still growing at the former location and will be carrying about 1000 flats of flowers and more than 500 baskets" he added.

Building construction is near completion and siding was scheduled to be put on the front this week. "People can stop in anytime now, we have product for them to buy", explained Ray.

The Mobleys plan on expanding their business by added two more greenhouses later this year. "We hope with this new location patrons will find our location easier," added Ray.

Country Side Greenhouse will hold their annual open house the last part of April.

TRAVIS C. MOFFITT

SHELL ROCK — Travis C. Moffitt, 62, of Shell Rock, died Saturday night, April 20 in West Plains, Mo. of an apparent heart attack.

He was born on Dec. 26, 1922 in Waterloo, the son of Grover and Alta Mai (Brietske) Moffitt. They lived in New Hartford where Travis attended school and graduated from the New Hartford High School in 1940. He then served in the Army Air Corps during World War II.

On Oct. 20, 1946, he was united in marriage to Beverly Hall in Shell Rock. They made their home in Shell Rock and Travis worked for the John Deere Tractor Works for a short time and then went to work for the Oliver Corp. in Charles City. In 1953, he went to work for the Schield Bantam Company in Waverly where he worked until poor health forced his retirement on May 1, 1984.

Travis was a member of the Shell Rock United Methodist Church, was a member and Past Commander of Amvets Post No. 109 in Shell Rock, and Past Third District Commander, was a member and Past Noble Grand of I.O.O.F. Lodge No. 270 in Shell Rock, and was a member and Past President of U.A.W. Local No. 411 in Waverly.

He is survived by his wife, Beverly; two daughters, Mrs. John (Linda) Bingham of Shell Rock and Mrs. Dan (Sue Anne) Hruza of Cresco; two sons, K.C. and Tom Moffitt, both of Shell Rock. Also surviving are three brothers, Clifford Moffitt of Clearwater, Fla.; Thomas Moffitt of Seattle, Wash. and Theodore Moffitt of Albert City; one sister, Mrs. Victor (Cathlyn) Junker of New Hartford; and five grandchildren, Libby and Laney Bingham, Chris Hruza, Jeremiah and Briana Moffitt. He was preceded in death by his parents.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. on Wednesday, April 24 at the Shell Rock United Methodist Church with Rev. Dennis Gilbert officiating. He will be cremated and there will be a graveside service with military rites at 11 a.m. on Thursday, April 25 at Riverside Cemetery in Shell Rock.

There will be an Oddfellows service at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday at the Kaiser-Corson Funeral Home in Shell Rock where friends may call. The Moffitt family suggests that memorials be directed to either the American Heart Association or the Diabetes Association.

Theodore E. (Ted) Moffitt, 62, of 215 Mill St., New Hartford, Iowa, and formerly of Albert City, died Tuesday, August 31, 1990, at Sartori Memorial Hospital in Cedar Falls, of an apparent heart attack.

Ted was born on March 18, 1928, in Waterloo, Iowa, the son of Grover C. and Alta Mai Brietske Moffitt. He attended school in the New Hartford School system and was graduated from the New Hartford High School in 1946. He then worked at various jobs in the area until entering the U.S. Army during the Korean Conflict. Following his discharge, he attended Iowa State Teachers College (UNI) in Cedar Falls where he was graduated from in 1955. He then began teaching history at the Albert City-Truesdale High School where he taught until 1959. Ted then began working as a rural mail carrier in the Albert City area, retiring in April of 1986, when he moved to New Hartford where he had since lived.

Ted was a member of the V.F.W., and the American Legion Post #660 in New Hartford. Ted also had many other hobbies during his retirement, and especially enjoyed the time that he spent with his nieces and nephews. For many years, Ted had sponsored children from other nations.

Ted is survived by his sister, Cathie, Mrs. Victor Junker of New Hartford; two brothers, Thomas F. Moffitt of Linnwood, Washington, and Clifford T. Moffitt of Clearwater, Florida; his sister-in-law, Beverly Moffitt of Shell Rock, Iowa, and ten nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents and one brother, Travis C. Moffitt.

Following the graveside service, relatives and friends are invited to the Community Building in New Hartford for fellowship with the Moffitt family.

Bob Moore, center, and Vivian Moore, seated, giving scholarship fund to John McCarty of UNI Foundation, along with the Moore's attorney, Thomas A. Lawler.

Moore's Establish Scholarship At The University Of Northern Iowa

Bob and Vivian Moore of Cedar Falls (formerly of New Hartford) have established a Scholarship Fund at the University of Northern Iowa. Following Bob and Vivian's death, this fund will be used for a scholarship to a resident of Butler County at the time of the person's high school graduation or for a person living in Butler County at the time the person applies for the scholarship. The scholarship is aimed at a strong student academically who demonstrates financial need. The recipient of the scholarship will be able to renew the scholarship provided the student maintains satisfactory academic progress.

Bob Moore grew up in Butler County. Vivian spent her childhood in Cedar Falls. Bob attended the University of Northern Iowa, graduating in 1932. Following their marriage, the Moore's lived in Clarksville, where Bob worked for S.O. Co. Ind. In 1944 they began farming North of New Hartford, an occupation they continued until their retirement and move to Cedar Falls. The Moore's have three children, Barbara Moore of Oakland, California, James Moore of Danville, California, and Stephen Moore of New Hartford, Iowa.

As long-time Butler County residents, the Moore's have contributed much to the County, serving on many committees and in many organizations, as well as being long-time members of the New Hartford Methodist Church. Bob and Vivian see this scholarship as a way of continuing their commitment to Butler County and the University of Northern Iowa. This scholarship also exemplifies their commitment to education. Vivian Moore was unable to attend college because of financial constraints. Bob and Vivian hope that this gift will encourage and help residents of Butler County continue their education.

In Memory of

Vivian Lenore Moore

Vivian was born February 9, 1910, in Cedar Falls, Iowa, the daughter of Ellsworth "Al" and Pearl S. (Hess) Aldrich. On April 19, 1936, she was united in marriage to Robert J. Moore in Cedar Falls, Iowa. She was vice president of Moore Farms, Inc. She was Past Worthy Matron of the New Hartford Chapter O.E.S. and currently a member of the Cedar Falls Chapter #78 O.E.S., Past President of New Hartford Women's Club and currently a member of the Cedar Falls Women's Club, past leader of the Busy Beaver 4-H Club, and a member of First United Methodist Church in New Hartford.

ALICE MOORE WEDS HARRY SCHOOLEY

The following is taken from a Lebanon, Ind. newspaper and will be of interest to New Hartford people.

A wedding marked by charming simplicity was solemnized at three o'clock Saturday afternoon March 8 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Schooley in Lebanon when Miss Alice M. Moore daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Moore became the bride of Harry E. Schooley. The Rev. Blaine E. Kirkpatrick pastor of Centenary Methodist church read the single ring service. Daffodils and greenery formed a lovely setting for the ceremony.

Mrs. Edwin Bird, sister of the bride groom played "At Dawn-ing" and "Because" preceding the service and the bridal march from Lohengrin was played for the entrance of the wedding party. The recessional was Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

Miss Harriet E. Moore of Ann Arbor, Mich., sister of the bride was maid of honor and she wore a suit of pink wool with navy accessories and her flowers were forget-me-nots. Wm. Shirley of Indianapolis was best man.

The bride wore a suit of navy blue wool with white accessories and a shoulder corsage of orchids.

A reception followed the ceremony and refreshments were served. The individual cakes were in the shape of wedding bells.

The bridal couple left Saturday evening for Indianapolis and from there to Flint, Mich., where they will live. The bride is a graduate of Iowa State college at Ames and Mr. Schooley is a graduate of Purdue University. He is employed by the A. C. Spark Plug Co in Flint.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moore of Clarksville attended the wedding.

Harriet Elizabeth Shapiro - Obituary

Harriet E. Shapiro (nee Moore), age 99, born in 1910, died July 17, 2009 after a short illness. She had lived at Leisure World, in Silver Spring, MD since 1971, moving there from Arlington, VA.

Mrs. Shapiro was born in Waterloo, IA and moved to New Hartford, IA when she was six. She was a member of the New Hartford High School graduating class of 1928 and of the Iowa State University, College of Nursing, class of 1932. She moved to Ann Arbor, MI after graduation to work at the University of Michigan hospital. It was in Ann Arbor where she met her future husband, Sidney Shapiro, from New York, NY, who was studying for his Ph.D.

They were married in New Orleans, LA in 1944 just prior to his deployment to the Philippines during World War II. During the war she worked at Walter Reed Hospital in its original location on the Washington Mall. After the war, she accompanied him on his Dept. of the Interior assignment to Japan to help re-establish the Japanese fishing industry. They lived in Japan for two years and then Hawaii before returning to the D.C. area. Upon their return to the States, she worked as a pediatric nurse in a local Washington, D.C. hospital.

Mrs. Shapiro began her life-long pursuit of travel in 1937 with a trip to Norway, Sweden and The Netherlands. After her marriage, she and her husband traveled extensively to Rome, Australia, and by freighter to Venezuela and many of the Caribbean islands. She continued traveling after her husband's death to New Zealand, Russia and Mexico.

After returning to Washington, D.C., they purchased land in Berryville, VA overlooking the Shenandoah River and built, by hand, what they hoped would be their retirement home. In Leisure World, she became an active participant in The League for Women Voters, the Garden Club and the Bluebird Society, participating in the yearly spring and fall bluebird counts. She learned how to drive in her early 60's and for 20 plus years drove the Garden Club golf cart in the annual Fourth of July parade. She was an avid gardener, descended from Iowa farmers and became an authority on wildflowers. She established the wildflower garden on the grounds of her community (successfully growing trilliums). She continued to be contemporary in global affairs, especially the arts, environmental and governmental affairs until shortly prior to her death.

She was predeceased by her husband, Sidney, in 1974; her parents, Harry A. and Julia VanGelder Moore of New Hartford, IA; her siblings, Doris Moore who died at the age of five; Alice M. Schooley of Indianapolis, IN and Robert J. Moore of New Hartford, IA. She is survived by five nieces and nephews, living in California, Washington state, Iowa and Maryland, as well as many great nieces and nephews and two great-great nephews.

She donated her body to The George Washington University Hospital School of Medicine and will be interred in the family plot in New Hartford, IA upon the return of her ashes.

THE BOOK OF MORMON: SACRED SCRIPTURES FROM AMERICA

The Book of Mormon and the Holy Bible go hand in hand; for both testify that Jesus is the Christ, the Savior of the world. The Bible prophet Ezekiel foresaw that in the latter days the writings of the Jews — The Bible — and the writings of the remnants of Ephraim — The Book of Mormon — would be joined together: “. . . and they shall become one in thine hand.” (Ezekiel 37:17) Isaiah also prophesied of this second sacred book saying that the Lord would bring it forth in the last days to do “. . . a marvelous work and a wonder.” (Isaiah, chapter 29)

The Book of Mormon, written by ancient American prophets, telling of God's dealings with the earliest American nations and shedding light on who these people were and where they went, has now been published in millions of copies and translated into thirty-four different languages, thus fulfilling the Bible prophecy that in the last days an angel would return to earth “. . . having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people.” (Revelations 14:6)

New Hartford Pair Have Seventy-First Nuptial Observance

J. A. MORRISON

Born 1843
MRS. MORRISON

(Courier Special Service)
New Hartford, Ia.—Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Morrison passed the seventy-first anniversary of their marriage here Saturday without formal observance, tho they received congratulations from friends who called. Illness in the family prevented any social activity in observance of the occasion. They reside at the home of a daughter, Mrs. A. E. Seaver. He is 93 and she 89 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrison were married in Beaver township of Butler county on Feb. 21, 1860. They were parents of five children, three of whom are living—Mrs. Seaver, Millard and Charles Morrison, Salina, Kan.

Mr. Morrison, a native of Barnesville, O., came to Cedar Falls in 1856. He has been a continuous resident of Butler county since 1868. He is a veteran of the Civil war, serving in Co. B, Thirty-first Iowa volunteer infantry, in which he enlisted on Aug. 9, 1862. He received his discharge June 27, 1865, at Louisville, Ky., and went at once to Shell Rock, where Mrs. Morrison then was living.

Mrs. Morrison was born in Plymouth, Ind., and came to Cedar Falls in 1858.

Obituary of the Late Mrs. James A. Morrison

1933 — 1932
Mrs. James A. Morrison passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. E. Seaver, Tuesday morning, Jan. 3 from illness incident to old age. She was 90 years and 11 days old.

Callista Almira Hard was born at Plymouth, Indiana, Dec. 23rd, 1842. When 5 years of age she moved with her parents to Greenbush, Sheboygan Co., Wis. Here they lived until she was fifteen years old when the family came to Iowa and settled on a farm in Beaver township, Butler Co., one mile west of Newell's Ford, which is now Finchford.

She attended school at Newell's Ford and at Cedar Falls. On Feb. 21, 1860, she was married to James A. Morrison. In 1868 the family moved to Shell Rock and later they moved to a farm south of that place where they lived for twelve years. In 1889, they came to New Hartford, where they have since resided. Mr. Morrison passed away in April, 1932.

Mrs. Morrison was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church and was always ready to give generously to the support of all organizations for the good of the community.

She was a faithful member of the Woman's Relief Corps, retaining her interest as long as her health permitted.

She leaves to mourn her passing, two sons, Millard of Abilene, Kan., and Charles of Kansas City, Mo. and one daughter, Mrs. A. E. Seaver of New Hartford. One son, Frank died in infancy and Roy in 1913. There are six grand children and six great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon, Jan. 5 at 1:30 o'clock at the home and at two o'clock from the Methodist church in charge of Rev. B. A. Davis of Hansell assisted by Rev. J. E. Pritchard.

Burial was made in Oak Hill cemetery. The Woman's Relief Corps attended in a body and formed open ranks at the graves.

PIONEER DIES AT AGE OF 90 YEARS IN NEW HARTFORD

Funeral Services for Mrs.
John A. Morrison to Be Thursday.

New Hartford, Ia.—Mrs. John A. Morrison, who passed her ninetieth birthday anniversary on Dec. 23, 1932, died early Tuesday morning from general breakdown. She had been failing in health for some time.

The funeral will be Thursday afternoon with services at the home at 1:30 o'clock and at the Methodist Episcopal church at 2.

Mrs. Morrison was a pioneer of this section, coming to Cedar Falls in 1858 at the age of 16. She was a native of Plymouth, Ind. Her marriage to Mr. Morrison, who died during last summer, took place in Union township of Black Hawk county on Feb. 21, 1862. Mr. Morrison was a Civil war veteran, having served in Co. B, Thirty-first Iowa.

She is survived by three of their five children: Mrs. A. E. Seaver, with whom she resided; Mildred Morrison, Abilene, Kan., and Charles A. Morrison, Kansas City. There are six grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

Roy L. Morrison.

The death of Roy Morrison brought sorrow to many friends, young and old, in New Hartford where he lived and grew to manhood.

Royal Leigh, the youngest son of James A. and Almira Morrison, was born on a farm in Butler county, six miles north of New Hartford May 25, 1883. His parents moved to New Hartford when he was 5 years old and he entered the public school and pursued the course until within a few months of graduation, when he left school and took a position in the store. He proved himself a very efficient clerk and when a better position was offered to him at Gladbrook, Iowa, in 1904 he went there filling that till July 1st 1906, when he began work for the International Harvester Co., at Fort Dodge, Iowa. Here his services were appreciated to such an extent that each year he was promoted with an increase of salary.

Under the ministry of Rev. J. H. Hayward he was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal church at New Hartford, Ia., on probation February 18, 1900 and was received in full connection July 29, 1900, and continued in that relation until his death.

On Tuesday, March third, he was taken sick with what proved to be peritonitis. He was taken to the hospital where he suffered till Friday evening March 13, 1908 and though everything was done that love and skill could do, including an operation, he passed away at 10:55 that evening at the age of 24 years 9 months and 18 days.

When the doctors pronounced the case hopeless and life to be a matter of but a few hours at the most, the difficult task of acquainting him with the truth was undertaken by the manager of the office in which he worked. He then turned to his brother and taking his hand said "The best of friends must part." He expressed a wish to see his father and mother and bade his brother bid them goodbye and then sent a similar message to each member of the family. After a few moments he said "God be with you till we meet again." He then talked with his brother about some business matters. After a while he looked up and described a scene beautiful beyond earthly scenes and lay back and the life slowly ebbed away. His brother says that if everyone could so die, death would be nothing. And so happy was his passing that he cannot regret it. Roy had made many friends in Fort Dodge and during his sickness they sent in flowers in such a profusion that the bed was always surrounded with them.

The remains were brought home Saturday by his brother Charles. The funeral services were held at the Baptist church Monday afternoon, conducted by S. C. Bretnall, a former pastor, assisted by Rev. C. H. Moore. Appropriate hymns were sung. The church was filled with friends, among them several from Fort Dodge, representatives of the company for which he worked. The pulpit and casket were covered with Easter lilies, roses and carnations, tokens of love and sympathy of friends.

The pall bearers were: C. Plambeck, Leo Paulger, Arthur Harmon, Harry Harmon, Louie Knipe and J. Wilson.

Card of Thanks.

We take this means of expressing the gratitude we feel and sincere thanks to our many friends in New Hartford and Ft. Dodge and to those of the International Harvester Co., for the many acts of kindness and sympathy shown during the sickness and burial of our beloved son and brother.

Dies at Fort Dodge.

Roy Morrison, a resident of this city, died at the hospital in Fort Dodge at 10:00 p. m., Friday following an operation for appendicitis, which was performed two days before. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Morrison, old residents of this place, and had spent the greater part of his life here, where he is highly respected. He was 25 years old and leaves to mourn his loss his parents, two brothers and a sister. His brother Charles went to Fort Dodge this morning and will accompany the remains home. Funeral services will be held from the Baptist church Monday at 2:00 p. m. conducted by Rev. Bretnall of Center Point, former pastor of the Methodist church here.

Cheery, Pink-Cheeked 70-Year-Old Is Uncrowned Poet Laureate of Hudson

By PATTY JOHNSON

Hudson — Four things have kept Mrs. Anton Mortenson of Hudson alive for the past 16 years. That's how long she's been almost completely crippled with arthritis and if it hadn't been for her faith in God, her family, her crocheting and her poetry, she's certain she would never have lived to celebrate her 70th birthday anniversary last month.

Surprisingly enough, she's now the only one living out of a family of 12 and, although she cannot move from her wheelchair without help, she has a calm and contented philosophy for living and a letter acquaintance throughout the middlewest.

"I used to work pretty hard when we lived on a farm before moving to Hudson 10 years ago," she says, "and I miss being able to help around the house and, most of all, being able to visit the sick and take them flowers or canned fruit."

Now the situation is reversed. Mr. and Mrs. Mortenson, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Feb. 12, 1945, and their daughters, Mrs. Iva Howard and Mrs. Edgar Wassam, and the latter's husband all live together amicably in their home at Hudson. Mrs. Mortenson's friends visit her and hardly a week passes that she doesn't crochet a pot holder or doily for a friend or write a poem for a state occasion in Hudson or elsewhere.

Crochets on Back

In order to crochet with her crippled hands, Mrs. Mortenson has to lie flat on her back in bed and hold her arms aloft. Yet the crocheted work she turns out is both delicate and perfect, although she says disgustedly, "I just never could do anything with the directions."

During the war she wrote to many Hudson service men. Now that occupation has ceased but her days are busy with filling orders for her original poetry, ideas for which flow forth endlessly from her fingers to the typewriter she can use in spite of her condition.

Her poems used to be read on a radio program and one, "My Mother's Bible," gained fame through several states. She still receives requests for copies of it. She charges 10 cents for copies of a poem she's already composed and 50 cents for a poem composed especially as a request.

"The most requests I ever received in one day were 17," she says, "and I also recall at one time of having 90 requests for me to get filled, typed and mailed out. Some poems I've written have produced hundreds and hundreds of requests."

Mrs. Ella (Anton) Mortenson, Hudson's 70-year-old uncrowned poet laureate, is pictured above with her beloved companion, "Pepper" the cat. She figures her poetry has gone into "hundreds and hundreds of homes" and she likes to think that maybe it's helped others as it has helped her to forget the pain of arthritis.

Mrs. Mortenson, who signs her poems "Ella," is a white-haired, cheerful-looking woman with a complexion as pink and a face as unlined as a child's. Perhaps that's partly due to the atmosphere of warm companionship which surrounds the Mortenson home and also to her deep faith in religion.

Come From Heart

"My poems are the simple, ordinary kind," she admits, "but they come from 'way down deep in my heart. I feel as though through them I'm doing a little bit of good."

She writes poems for weddings, anniversaries, family reunions, birthdays, illnesses and "death memories" and sometimes she reads the Courier and sends her rhymed greetings unasked, but, she thinks, welcome.

How many poems has she written? "Bless your heart, I just can't tell you," she sighs. There's one for every social event in Hudson, there's one for everyone who writes her and there's one for all her own celebrations.

"I wrote a 120-line one for our 50th anniversary," she says, "although most of them are about 30 or 40 lines long. My favorite is 'One Mother's Son' which I wrote during the war and I've written many for the Rebekah lodge here and just recently on my own birthday anniversary for Mrs. Libbie Brandhorst, who celebrated her 81st birthday the same day."

Others of her poems are "God's Way," her own message of faith and comfort; "Little Garments," a story of the joys of childhood; "My Seventieth Birthday," an outline of her life in retrospect, written for her nieces and nephews, and "The Ladies Aid," one of the best, a humorous poem on the numerous financial burdens of the women of the church.

Her Hudson friends almost always use "My Mother's Bible" for state occasions, but sentimentally confess that they don't like to read it because it makes them cry. Once a minister in Mankato, Minn., sent her a rush order on the Tuesday before Good Friday for a poem on Christ's crucifixion and she had it ready before noon of the morning she received the request, although it was one of her arthritic "bad days."

Vague Requests

Some of the requests for poems are a little vague. One was for a poem on "wind" and another for a poem on a soldier's conversion but Mrs. Mortenson always manages to fill the bill. Her success she measures by the fact that the

"thank you" letters are frequent and also the money she receives often exceeds the amount she charges.

There are many times when pain puts her behind in her typing. But she insists she's never been stymied for ideas and that she's never "gone stale" even though she writes about the same subjects again and again.

"God gave me my poetry to make life easier. I'm so grateful," she says.

Hudson woman leaves $65,000 for students

By LARRY BALLARD
Courier Staff Writer

HUDSON — A Hudson woman who died last summer has left behind more than $65,000 to start a scholarship fund for graduating high school seniors.

Thelma Wassam, a former Finchford teacher, creamery worker, and telephone operator, died May 26, 1990, of natural causes. She was 81 years old.

The money — representing 25 percent of her estate — will be used to establish the Edgar F. and Thelma M. Wassam Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Wassam's husband, a Hudson lawyer, died in 1986. She was a secretary in his law office until their retirement in 1967.

In her will, Wassam earmarked the money "to provide an underprivileged senior boy or girl with funds to defray the expenses of a full-time program at an accredited technical school, college, or university of his or her choice."

Superintendent Gene Panning said the district already has received "the first installment" of the fund, totaling $65,000. A second, smaller, installment is expected later, he said.

"We are certainly very grateful that she remembered the school and the kids," Panning said. "These things don't happen very often."

The Wassam scholarship, to be paid directly to the selected student's chosen institution, will be awarded each year on financial criteria determined by the school district, said Panning.

"We will form a committee to do just that," he said.

Mrs. Ivah J. Howard June 14 1984

HUDSON—Services for Mrs. Ivah J. Howard, 84, of 228 Washington St., will be 1:30 p.m. Friday at First Brethren Church in Waterloo with burial in Riverside Cemetery, Shell Rock.

Mrs. Howard died Tuesday afternoon at Schoitz Medical Center in Waterloo.

She was born Aug. 16, 1899, at rural New Hartford, daughter of Anton and Ella Corwin Mortensen. She married Joe L. Howard Oct. 16, 1926, at Waterloo. He died in 1935. She was employed as a telephone operator at the Black Hawk County Courthouse and as a legal secretary for the Wassam Law Firm until retiring in 1976.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Edgar Wassam of 228 Washington St.

Friends may call after 4 p.m. Thursday at Locke Funeral Home in Waterloo, where the family will receive visitors from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Thursday. There also will be visitation at the funeral home until noon Friday and at the church for an hour before services.

Memorials may be made to the Ivah J. Howard Memorial Fund.

DEATH OF AN 1909 OLD CITIZEN

New Hartford, Iowa, Aug. 20.—Mrs. John Morton, who for the past year has been ill with paralysis and heart trouble, died Tuesday night after having a severe stroke of paralysis on Saturday night. Mrs. Morton was one of the most respected citizens, a faithful member and worker in the Baptist church and a prominent member of the Woman's Relief Corps. She leaves her husband, who was a soldier in the war, and a prisoner in the Andersonville prison, who is quite feeble, one son Charles, who is teaching at Atwood, Kansas; three daughters living here, Mrs. Tostlebe, Mrs. Anna Plummer and Miss Myra, who is living at home. All were present to help care for their mother in her last illness. Services were held Thursday in the Baptist church by Rev. Essex. Mrs. Morton has three brothers, William, Clarence and Voss Cuning, who with their families were present. Friends from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Graham Tostlebe, John and Eugene Dumond of Waterloo, Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Lawrence of Cedar Falls, and Mr. and Mrs. Knipe of Parkersburg. A large concourse of relatives and friends met to pay their respects and the number of beautiful floral designs spoke of her worth in the community in which she has lived for over forty years. The past nine years lived in town. Mr. Morton Grundy County's most prominent men. A loving wife, and a respected neighbor to her reward.

Mrs. J. A. Morton 1909

In the death of Mrs. J. A. Morton, which was announced last week, is the loss of a good woman to the community and a loving wife and mother taken from the home, where she will be missed more than words can tell. She was also a faithful worker in the different societies to which she belonged.

The funeral was held Thursday afternoon, August 19th, at the Baptist church conducted by the pastor, Rev. H. A. Essex, whose remarks were full of tender sympathy. Many floral offerings were placed about the casket—expressing the love and sympathy of relatives and friends.

The choir, composed of Mrs. Sprague, Misses Pearl Mack and Evelyn Dunham, Messrs. Yokom, Cartner and Sprague rendered the following hymns: "Lead Kindly Light," "Sometime We'll Understand" and "Jesus Lover of My Soul."

After these impressive services the remains were taken to Oak Hill, where they were laid to rest in that quiet city of the dead until the Resurrection Morn.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Frank Tostlebe, J. M. Knipe, W. A. Ranney, E. J. Dunham, J. A. Morrison and E. S. Philo.

Emma Cuning was born in Seneca county, Ohio, daughter of Amos and Anna Cuning, September 15, 1850. She moved to the vicinity of New Hartford in 1866. At the age of eighteen she joined the Baptist church at New Hartford, having since been a faithful, conscientious worker for Christ.

She was united in marriage to John A. Morton, who survives her, in Grundy county, Iowa, March 3, 1870. To this union there was born five children: Neva A., who died at the age of six months, Anna S., Ada I., Charles A. and Myra M., all residing in New Hartford. For thirty years the family resided on a farm near this place, moving to town nine years ago. She died August 17, 1909, aged 58 years, 11 months and two days. She was a loving wife a devoted mother and true Christian. Besides the immediate family, she leaves to mourn her death three brothers, O. V. of Cedar Falls, C. L. and W. C. Cuning of this place.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our gratitude and appreciation to all who so kindly assisted us, by word or act, during the sickness, death and burial of our beloved wife and mother.

John A. Morton and Children.

JOHAN A. MORTON. On section 2, Fairfield Township, Grundy County, lies a pleasant, finely tilled and well improved farm, which is the property of our subject. He is a native of Hampshire County, Mass., where his birth occurred March 28, 1836, and has been a resident of this county since 1870. Of the twelve children born to John A. and Sophronia (Thayer) Morton, the parents of our subject, seven are living, namely: George W., Elmira S., John A., Thomas, Horace B., Edward and Jennie W. The mother of these children was born on a farm in the Bay State, and was there given a fair education.

John A. Morton, Sr., followed the occupation of a farmer very successfully, and for two years represented Hampshire County, Mass., in the State Legislature. In politics, he was in early life a Whig, and after the organization of the Republican party, voted for its candidates until his decease, at the advanced age of seventy-three years. He was one of the oldest and most respected citizens of Hampshire County, and was a man of solid virtues, sensible and thoughtful in his views on all subjects. He was one of the Trustees of Hopkins Academy, at Hadley, Mass., and held many responsible positions in his community.

Our subject commenced life for himself when twenty years of age, and in 1856, coming to this state, located in Butler County, where he made his home for about two years. Then going to Ogle County, Ill., he worked out by the month until the spring of 1861, when he joined the ranks of the Union army, becoming a member of Company H, Fifteenth Illinois Infantry. He served through the entire period of the war, and participated in the following well known engagements: Shiloh, Champion Hill, Hatchie's Run, Corinth, and the siege of Vicksburg. During his army experience he suffered many hardships, and in the fall of 1864 was taken prisoner and confined in Andersonville Prison for almost a year, or until his discharge, June 30, 1865. He was mustered out at Springfield, Ill., and now draws a pension of $4 per month.

When returning home from the war, in the spring of 1866, Mr. Morton came to Butler County, this state, and settled on a ninety-acre farm. Four years later he was united in marriage with Miss Emma, daughter of Amos and Anna (Dumond) Cunning, natives of Ohio, and to them were born five children, viz.: Neva, now deceased; Anna S., Ada I., Charles A. and Almira. Mrs. Morton was born on a farm in Seneca County, Ohio, and during her earlier years attended school near her home. After the removal of her parents to Butler County, this state, she took a course of study in the schools of New Hartford and taught for seven terms in this state. She is a most highly respected lady, and is a useful member of the Baptist Church.

The farm of our subject, which comprises one hundred and sixty-two acres, is under excellent cultivation, and is provided with neat and well built structures, and in fact, everything necessary for prosecuting agriculture advantageously. He has proved himself a capable farmer, and has been prospered in his agricultural ventures. He is a strong Republican in politics, and has held many township offices of trust. As may be expected, he is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, being connected with Robert Olmstead Lodge No. 243, at New Hartford.

Shaker Village, a permanent memorial to the Shaker way of life, was established in the 1960's. The Round Stone Barn was the center of the Hancock Shakers' dairy business located outside Pittsfield, Massachusetts. The barn, constructed in 1826, was built to house a large herd of cows.

The Octagonal Barn originally stood on a farm in Bridgewater, Virginia. Scheduled for demolition to make room for a housing sub-division in 1988, the barn was donated and relocated to the American Frontier Culture Museum in Staunton, Virginia. The barn is one of two octagonally shaped barns known to exist in the Shenandoah Valley, and was built of oak and pine by Charles S. Kiser in 1915.

The Concord Bridge in Concord, Massachusetts, also known as the Old North Bridge, is the site of the first time in American history (April 19, 1775) that citizens turned their guns on British troops. The "shot heard 'round the world" rang out and the American Revolution began.

Valley Junction Depot is located in West Des Moines, Iowa.

Sun-Kissed Hill—Sisters of Mercy Mercy Hospital was established in 1895 by the Catholic Sisters of Mercy in Des Moines, Iowa. The Iowa State Register, in 1895, remarked on the location of the hospital, "... outside the bustle of the city on a sun-kissed hill ...". Ever since the hospital and the surrounding area has been recognized as Sun-Kissed Hill.

The Church at Bethany The Bausman Memorial United Church of Christ in Wyomissing, Pennsylvania, was originally built in 1908 as a Sunday school. The church was chartered in 1909 and construction began in 1912 with an addition completed in 1922.

Tinkling Springs Heritage. Tinkling Springs Presbyterian Church, located in Fisherville, Virginia, was originally constructed of logs and completed around 1748. In 1792, this primitive structure was replaced by a “stone sanctuary” and in 1850 replaced with a brick church.

My New Friends and Milking. Previously published as illustrations for Reuben and the Fire, a children’s book by Pat and Merle Good. These two images depict the daily routine of Reuben, a young Amish boy.

Vermont Bridge Kokomo, Indiana. The only remaining covered bridge in Howard County is located in Highland Park, Kokomo, Indiana. The bridge, originally built about six miles east of Kokomo in the village of Vermont circa 1860, was scheduled for destruction in 1957 to make room for a larger bridge. Local historians convinced the city that the bridge was a historical landmark and soon a successful campaign to save and relocate the bridge was organized.

The Moss Stitcher’s Quilt. This print was inspired by a quilt designed and stitched by a Nebraska Moss collector, Virginia Sitorius. The quilt contains twelve cross stitch designs from the P. Buckley Moss cross stitch collection published by June Grigg.

The Grant Wood School. Artist Grant Wood (1892-1942), painter of one of the most recognized paintings in America, American Gothic, attended the Antioch country school near Anamosa, Iowa, until he was 10 years old.

Morning at St. James. St. James Meeting House is located in Boardman Park, Boardman, Ohio. Built between 1827-1829, the Episcopalian church was moved to its present site in January 1972. The church, no longer consecrated, is used for weddings, baptisms and other types of gatherings.

The Mansion. Located within the Living History Farms compound in Urbandale, Iowa, Flynn Mansion was built in 1870 by Martin Flynn, an Irish immigrant to Iowa in the 1850’s.

All pieces are offset lithographs reproduced from watercolors in one time editions of 1,000 prints and 25 artist’s proofs, except The Mansion, a mixed media original print (etching and silkscreen), which is in an edition of 250 signed and numbered prints with 10 artist’s proofs. All limited edition prints are signed and numbered. Available from your local Moss dealer.

Skating in Mill Creek. Skating, a favorite childhood winter activity of Pat's, is shown in the setting of Mill Creek Park in Youngstown, Ohio.

Love and Support. This print was inspired by the PALS for LIFE Breast Cancer support group in association with the St. Elizabeth Medical Center (Dayton, Ohio) Breast Cancer Fund.

Town Hall, Occoquan. Originally built as a Methodist church in 1920, the stick style trimmed building was acquired by the Town of Occoquan, Virginia in 1963.

The Little Red School House. Originally built of logs in 1805 in Poland Township, Ohio, the schoolhouse evolved into a more substantial clapboard frame "subscription" schoolhouse in the 1820's. Subscription schools were where students paid a fee or subscription to attend. Subscriptions were commonly paid in services or goods such as sewing, room and board or in fruits and vegetables, for cash was scarce in the early pioneer days on the Ohio frontier. By 1858 a permanent red brick public school house was built on the site.

Vinton Days. The Iowa Braille School, in Vinton, Iowa was founded in 1852. The school staff serves children and youth from birth to age 21 who are blind or visually impaired including those with additional disabilities. Nearly 400 students receive services from the Iowa Braille School annually. Pat visited the school in September of this year.

The Old Presbyterian Church. Prior to the organization of the Nebraska Territory in 1854, missions were established among the Indian tribes of the area. In 1850 Reverend Edward McKinney founded the First Presbyterian Church of Nebraska with five members. The church is the oldest surviving structure originally built as a church in Nebraska.

All pieces are offset lithographs reproduced from watercolors in one time editions of 1,000 prints and 25 artist's proofs, except Cats Galore. All limited edition prints are signed and numbered. Available from your local Moss dealer.

Shaker Village, a permanent memorial to the Shaker way of life, was established in the 1960's. The Round Stone Barn was the center of the Hancock Shakers' dairy business located outside Pittsfield, Massachusetts. The barn, constructed in 1826, was built to house a large herd of cows.

The Octagonal Barn originally stood on a farm in Bridgewater, Virginia. Scheduled for demolition to make room for a housing sub-division in 1988, the barn was donated and relocated to the American Frontier Culture Museum in Staunton, Virginia. The barn is one of two octagonally shaped barns known to exist in the Shenandoah Valley, and was built of oak and pine by Charles S. Kiser in 1915.

The Concord Bridge in Concord, Massachusetts, also known as the Old North Bridge, is the site of the first time in American history (April 19, 1775) that citizens turned their guns on British troops. The "shot heard 'round the world" rang out and the American Revolution began.

Valley Junction Depot is located in West Des Moines, Iowa.

Sun-Kissed Hill—Sisters of Mercy Mercy Hospital was established in 1895 by the Catholic Sisters of Mercy in Des Moines, Iowa. The Iowa State Register, in 1895, remarked on the location of the hospital, "... outside the bustle of the city on a sun-kissed hill ...". Ever since the hospital and the surrounding area has been recognized as Sun-Kissed Hill.

The Church at Bethany The Bausman Memorial United Church of Christ in Wyomissing, Pennsylvania, was originally built in 1908 as a Sunday school. The church was chartered in 1909 and construction began in 1912 with an addition completed in 1922.

Tinkling Springs Heritage. Tinkling Springs Presbyterian Church, located in Fisherville, Virginia, was originally constructed of logs and completed around 1748. In 1792, this primitive structure was replaced by a “stone sanctuary” and in 1850 replaced with a brick church.

My New Friends and Milking. Previously published as illustrations for Reuben and the Fire, a children’s book by Pat and Merle Good. These two images depict the daily routine of Reuben, a young Amish boy.

Vermont Bridge Kokomo, Indiana. The only remaining covered bridge in Howard County is located in Highland Park, Kokomo, Indiana. The bridge, originally built about six miles east of Kokomo in the village of Vermont circa 1860, was scheduled for destruction in 1957 to make room for a larger bridge. Local historians convinced the city that the bridge was a historical landmark and soon a successful campaign to save and relocate the bridge was organized.

The Moss Stitcher’s Quilt. This print was inspired by a quilt designed and stitched by a Nebraska Moss collector, Virginia Sitorius. The quilt contains twelve cross stitch designs from the P. Buckley Moss cross stitch collection published by June Grigg.

The Grant Wood School. Artist Grant Wood (1892-1942), painter of one of the most recognized paintings in America, American Gothic, attended the Antioch country school near Anamosa, Iowa, until he was 10 years old.

Morning at St. James. St. James Meeting House is located in Boardman Park, Boardman, Ohio. Built between 1827-1829, the Episcopalian church was moved to its present site in January 1972. The church, no longer consecrated, is used for weddings, baptisms and other types of gatherings.

The Mansion. Located within the Living History Farms compound in Urbandale, Iowa, Flynn Mansion was built in 1870 by Martin Flynn, an Irish immigrant to Iowa in the 1850’s.

Rockledge Mansion Designed in the Georgian style by William Buckland in the late 1750's, Rockledge Mansion was home to John Balladine of Occoquan, Virginia.

Our Alma Mater Built from 1909-1911, Springfield, Ohio's first high school, Springfield High, is now known as Springfield South. The entrance was designed after the Library of Congress. The central dome is fashioned in the early Byzantine style, with a window of tiffany-like glass.

Town Hall Trot Built in 1900 by Joseph Willard, proprietor of Washington, D.C.'s famous Willard Hotel, Old Town Hall is a splendid turn of the century architectural jewel located in old town Fairfax City. It is used today for social and artistic events.

The Rex Fire Company Designed in the Italianate style, the Rex and Laurel Fire Company, located in York, Pennsylvania, was erected in 1877.

The Farm House Purchased in Buffalo Grove, Illinois, and moved to the Historical Village of Long Grove. The actual farm house is owned by the Long Grove Historical Society. The past president of the Long Grove Historical Society calls this "the house that Pat built" because it was purchased and relocated from funds that Pat and her charitable endeavors helped raise.

Stage Coach Stop Built in the early 1800's in Waynesville, Ohio, the Holloway-Brown house was originally a log inn and tavern operated by David Holloway. In 1842 Charles Dickens and his wife stopped at the inn during his first tour through Ohio.

Pals for Life This print is inspired by Pals For Life, a breast cancer support group associated with St. Elizabeth's Medical Center in Dayton, Ohio.

All pieces are offset lithographs reproduced from watercolors in one time editions of 1,000 and 25 artist's proofs.

ACTing FOR CHILDREN

P. Buckley Moss is no stranger to classrooms throughout the country. Pat's sensitivity to the needs of children and her work with children who are learning different have helped attract numerous ACT Program volunteers. A small commitment of time makes an important difference in the lives of young children who need special attention.

"Not all children have happiness, but they want to find it."

- Michelle Chapman, ACT Volunteer

Joel Baker is one of two students with whom volunteer Bill Taylor works.

P. BUCKLEY MOSS SOCIETY

ADULTS AND CHILDREN TOGETHER

A program in which each volunteer becomes a friend and counselor to a first or second grader who has been identified as needing extra love, attention and encouragement.

THE BEGINNING

Spring of 1991 saw Charles Kuralt interview 92 year-old Julia Goldstein, founder of ACT (Adults and Children Together), and P. Buckley Moss was among those watching. The ACT program reminded Pat of the relationship she had had with her grandfather Buckley and how his influence, support, and interest helped her succeed. "He cared about what I was thinking, and what I was doing, and what I was reading in school, and what was going on. I think he was probably the first person who made me feel like an important human being." Being dyslexic and knowing first hand how hard school can be for those with learning disabilities, Moss wants all children in need of love and understanding to have a "Grandparent Buckley".

THE P. BUCKLEY MOSS SOCIETY TAKES ACTION

Julia Goldstein was invited to speak at the national P. Buckley Moss Society Chapter Training program in August of 1991. During the session, Julia described how ACT volunteers interact with young students and asked the Society to help take the ACT Program nationwide.

Today, several chapters have joined in the effort to help enrich the lives of children who have difficulties in school. Other caring adults from outside the Society have also been recruited by chapters, and though many are retired teachers, no special skill or teaching experience is required. Patience, caring, friendly smiles, and words of praise and encouragement are the tools volunteers bring to the program, and the results are often phenomenal. Students gain confidence and self esteem and also improve their academic skills. Volunteers provide encouragement and guidance and have the personal satisfaction of having made a positive difference for their students.

ACT VOLUNTEER REQUIREMENTS

- The desire to help a small child.
- Commit to a minimum of 30 minutes per week to a child in need of one-on-one attention.
- Commit to stay with the program through the school term.
- Be a positive role model and friend to a child.
- A ready smile, patience and encouragement.

STEPS TO ACTIVATE AND MAINTAIN AN ACTIVE PROGRAM

Contact the P. Buckley Moss Society for program guidelines and referral to an ACT volunteer.

Contact your local elementary school principal to discuss implementing the program.

Conduct a training session to learn the school's policies and how your individual sessions should be conducted as volunteers.

Maintain contact with other ACT volunteers and school personnel in order to learn, avoid potential problems, and share ideas.

REACTIONS FROM PARTICIPANTS

"Give me a volunteer for each of my first graders, and we'll set the world on fire."

- Al Michelson, Principal

"Love is a 4-letter word called T-I-M-E. Because of the time our ACT volunteer has given, my student who was painfully shy and insecure has now become a class leader."

- Sheila Hattye, Teacher

"It's hard to tell who is benefitting the most—the children or the adults!"

- Ann Margaret McGuire, Principal

"I think it was on number 32 that her eyes lit up, and she understood that numbers are in sequence! It was the thrill of a lifetime."

- Louise Douglas, ACT Volunteer

"When Mrs. Sears comes, we read a lot. I like the Where's Waldo book she read to me. I like to read to her, too."

- Michael Josephson, first grader
WYE, Mrs. Clifton's Class

"Being with this child has really opened my eyes to the need for one-on-one attention."

- Nan Devaney, ACT Volunteer

"ACT has given me the opportunity to share love, encouragement, and friendship with a very special child. Being Tabitha's friend is a real joy."

- Gail Ledoux, ACT Volunteer

"If you give a little of yourself, you receive a thousand fold back. It has shown me how precious children are and that they have rights and feelings that must be met."

- Ruth Ziffer, ACT Coordinator

"There are needy children everywhere—not just needing help with school work, but also needing support, attention and encouragement."

- Dala Dewitt, ACT Volunteer

"I thought the program would be difficult and I would have discipline problems, but this isn't true. All you need is a big heart. It's a very rewarding experience."

- Shirley Wells, ACT Volunteer

"One hour per week is a small sacrifice for supporting our youth who are the leaders of the future."

- Kathie Chapman, ACT Coordinator

Little Red Schoolhouse featured in Moss print

CEDAR FALLS

Cedar Falls' Little Red School has posed for a famous artist — although no one here knew it until just recently.

P. Buckley Moss, the 62-year-old artist from Waynesboro, Va., is well-known for her stylized renderings of the Amish. She has never been to Cedar Falls, but incorporated the one-room schoolhouse into one of her watercolors by working from a photograph.

Jan Mandt, chairwoman of the Little Red School House Council, said the building featured in "End of the Day" is identical to the Cedar Falls school, but there was some confusion about whether the two were really one and the same.

"I was skeptical at first, but after we found out it was, we went nuts," she said. "We were tingly, we were so excited."

Now a Cedar Falls art gallery has offered to donate $20 to the Historical Society for every copy of the print it sells, said Sid Morris, society president.

The 86-year-old Little Red School, originally called Bennington Township School No. 5 and located off Highway 63 on Dunkerton Road, is a popular Cedar Falls historical site now sitting on the riverfront near the Ice House Museum.

"It really is (the Cedar Falls school)," Moss said in a telephone interview from her Virginia studio. "Evelyn Boice asked me to please do a picture of it. She just loves the schoolhouse. I like it too — I think it's just adorable. And I love to paint country schools."

Boice, the president of the local chapter of the P. Buckley Moss Collectors' Society (there are more than 70 chapters in the United States with about 17,500 members), mailed Moss photographs of the school, along with several other interesting Cedar Falls sites.

Nothing came of the photos — or so it appeared.

Then in April 1994, the prints came out and were sold in obscurity at metro art galleries, said Greg Angove, owner of Cedar Falls' Heritage Art Gallery & Frame Shoppe

Ltd., which is donating a portion of its print sales to the Historical Society.

"There's folks out there that really don't know what they bought," he said.

A couple of weeks ago, a volunteer at the George Wyth House Museum answered a telephone call from an Ohio couple who said they "wanted to see the schoolhouse pictured in the P. Buckley Moss painting," Mandt said.

That prompted a flurry of questions.

Angove said when Heritage staff peered at the picture, they said, "It looks like the Little Red Schoolhouse, but it can't be."

But a call to Virginia confirmed the Cedar Falls schoolhouse is the very one that inspired the painting.

In the picture, a "snake line" of bow-legged Amish children are walking down a curved path in front of the schoolhouse.

"I think it's kind of a happy idea," Moss explained. "Instead of all running about in different directions, the children are all together, holding hands. It says they've had a good time at school. It's a happy thing,

Moss' husband, Malcolm Henderson, who helps oversee the painter's nationwide sales, said half of the limited edition of 1,000 offset lithograph prints has already been sold.

Heritage sells the prints unframed for $90. Copies of the print can be ordered through the schoolhouse, the Victorian House Museum or at art galleries.

Mother's Day facts and fancies

Millions of Americans will be using flowers to honor Mother on her day this year, yet few people stop to think about some of the unusual beliefs and customs associated with this holiday.

While millions of modern mothers will again be honored on Mother's Day this year, few dutiful sons and daughters realize that Mom had her own special day several thousand years ago! According to historians, the early pagans of the Near East and Mediterranean regions worshiped an "Earth Mother" at annual woodland festivals.

Mother of the Gods

In Asia Minor, a day was set aside for honoring Cybele, "Mother of the Gods."

When the Romans adopted the festival and called it the "Feast of Hilaria," the whole family danced through the streets wearing garlands of leaves in their tresses.

Researchers tell us that in ancient Roman times, "Mother's Day" wasn't celebrated on the second Sunday in May, as it is today, but usually fell on the Ides (middle) of March. Apparently, Roman Mamas fared better on this inauspicious date than did Julius Caesar.

Living Goddesses

Every day was "Mother's Day" for moms of ancient German tribesmen who considered all women divine — and sometimes regarded mothers as living goddesses!

Papa ruled the roost in most of Colonial America. But if early American settlers didn't set aside a special day for Mother, it wasn't because she wasn't highly esteemed. It was just that the strict Puritans didn't go in much for holidays of any kind; besides they knew about the pagan origins of festivities celebrated in honor of the distaff side!

Started in 1907

In fact, Mother's Day wasn't celebrated anywhere in the U.S. until 1907.

That year Anna M. Jarvis arranged a special church service in Grafton, W. Va., to commemorate her own late mother and other mothers — living and deceased — of the community.

Because the carnation was her mother's favorite flower, Anna Jarvis asked that each person attending the services wear a white carnation. After Mother's Day was proclaimed a national holiday by President Woodrow Wilson in 1914, celebrants ceased wearing flowers themselves and began giving them to their mothers in the form of corsages and bouquets.

Carnations are still traditional for Mother's Day, but any seasonal flower is considered appropriate.

Many honor Mother

So as you can see, you're mistaken if you fancy that the U.S.

the only country that has a day for honoring Mom.

The English have been doing it for more than 500 years with "Mothering Sunday" — the fourth Sunday in Lent

On this day they pay a special visit to their mothers, bearing candy, flowers and little spiced cakes baked for the occasion.

According to information from the National Committee on the Observance of Mother's Day, the more up-to-date version of the holiday is celebrated not only in the U. S., but in such far-flung places as Mexico, Canada, South America, China, Japan and Africa!

The Real Founder?

HENDERSON, KY. (AP) — Mother's Day has a special meaning for residents of this northwest Kentucky community. They claim that Mary Towles Sasseeen, a Henderson native, was the real founder of Mother's Day 83 years ago.

Anna M. Jarvis of Philadelphia generally is credited with being the first to celebrate Mother's Day.

Miss Jarvis sent 500 carnations to St. Andrews Methodist Church in Grafton, W. Va., on May 10, 1908, to honor her mother who had died three years before.

Henderson residents, however, point to Miss Sasseeen as the first to actively work for a special day for mother. They say she was a teacher here and in 1887 began the observance in her classroom.

Hello World

Wanda and Michael Hippen of Aplington are proud to announce the arrival of their son, Justin James, who was born on February 19, 1988 at Sartori Memorial Hospital, Cedar Falls, Iowa. He weighed 10 lbs, 7 ozs. and was 21½ inches long.

Grandparents are Mrs. Shirlene Mulder and the late Herman Mulder of Parkersburg; Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Hippen of Aplington.

Great grandparents are Mrs. Grace Mulder of New Hartford, Mrs. Anna Hinders of Ackley and Mr. and Mrs. John Hippen, Sr. of Aplington.

Mulder - Hippen Wedding

Miss Wanda Jean Mulder of Parkersburg and Michael Jay Hippen of Aplington were united in marriage on Friday, August 28, 1987 at 7:30 p.m. at the Stout Reformed Church. Pastor Don Ringnald and Pastor John Houseward officiated the ceremony.

Their parents are Shirlene Mulder and the late Herman Mulder of Parkersburg and Dennis and Evelyn Hippen of Aplington.

Music was provided by soloist Marcia Allspach and organist Janet Johnson, both aunts of the groom. Marcia sang "In This Quiet Hour", "The Rose", "If", and "Wedding Prayer."

The church was decorated in candelabras of light blue and royal blue and bouquets of carnations and daisies.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and brothers. The bride wore an ivory satin gown. The bodice was of lace decorated with pearls and sequins. The sleeves fell in pleated overlays ending in lace trimmed with sequins and pearls. The chapel train, with insets of lace, and surrounded by lace fell from a bow at the back. Her satin hat was trimmed with lace, and sequins and pearls, with a lace bow at the back. The bride's bouquet was a cascade of light blue, royal blue and white roses with baby's breath.

Maid of Honor was Kelly Etjen of Parkersburg, friend of the couple. Bridesmaid was Laura Hippen of Aplington, sister of the groom. Flowergirls were Amanda Alberts and Rachael Alberts, cousins of the bride. The attendants and flowergirls wore stripped-tea length dresses of satin and chiffon. They had puffed sleeves, cummerbunds and bows at the back. They wore blue flowers in their hair and carried a blue rose stem with baby's breath.

The groom chose Stan Mulder of Parkersburg, as his Bestman. Groomsman was Jeff Williams of Allison, friend of the couple. The ringbearer was Kevin Alberts, cousin of the bride. Ushers were Matt Hippen of Aplington, brother of the groom and Lynn Hippen of Aplington, sister of the groom. The groom wore an ivory tuxedo and a blue rose bud boutonniere. All the men of the wedding party wore royal blue tuxedos, cummerbunds, and light blue pleated shirts and white trousers. They wore a light blue carnation boutonniere.

The bride's mother wore a light blue silk dress which was trimmed with white lace. The groom's mother wore a royal blue 2 piece silk dress. Their corsages were royal blue and light blue daisies, rose buds and carnations.

A reception was held at the Aplington Amvet Hall.

The bride is a 1985 graduate of Parkersburg High School and a 1986 graduate of LaJames. The bride has been employed by Hair By Stewarts in Cedar Falls and will be employed at the Parkersburg Veterinarian Office and Teresa's Modern Styles in Parkersburg.

The groom is a 1982 graduate of Aplington High School and is employed at Aplington Livestock Auction and is also farming.

OLD SETTLER

1907 CALLED HOME 1907

After a lingering illness of four weeks of Lagrippe Mr. Joseph Murray was called to his untimely home February 19 at 7:30 p. m. He was born in Montreal, Can., March 16, 1828. At the age of nine years he moved with his parents to Plattsburg, N. Y. On January 14, 1849, he was married to Margaret Hool. Nine children were born to this union, Lewis N., having died August 6th, 1897. He came to Iowa in 1855 and resided on a farm three and a half miles north of town and in 1895 he moved to Cedar Falls where he has since resided. Mr. Murray was reared by christian parents and when asked if he was ready to go he said he longed for the time to come.

The funeral occurred from the late residence at 2:00 o'clock on Saturday afternoon in charge of Rev. James E. Snowden, assisted by Rev. E. B. Jone of the Baptist church. Interment was at Greenwood.

He is survived by his wife and the following children: John, living near Spokane, Wash.; Mrs. Albert Munger, living at New Hartford; Mrs. Bartlett Stone of Cedar Falls; Mrs. F. F. Eckliff of Rock Rapids; Mrs. Cyrus Lichty of Cedar Falls; Wilbur Murray of Cedar Falls; Mrs. D. L. Sweitzer of Chicago and George Murray of Waterloo. One sister, Mrs. M. A. Fowler, resides in this city and one brother, Lou Murray, resides at Waterloo.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to thank our christian friends for their aid and sympathy during the sickness and death of our beloved father and husband and for the beautiful floral offerings.

Mrs. Joseph Murray and family.

EDIBLE MUSHROOMS IN IOWA

Mushrooms are of great interest for a variety of reasons. They are prized as food by many persons, while others consider mushrooms things of beauty for their unique forms and colors.

Mushrooms are probably the least understood of all plants. Folklore abounds with half truths, untruths, and outright superstitions about mushrooms. The plants often appear and disappear rapidly—in some instances overnight—which adds to their aura of mystery.

Some varieties are eagerly sought by the connoisseur; most are hardly worth eating, and some are highly poisonous. Identification of the various forms can be very difficult. As a result, most people are wary and suspicious of all mushrooms. For the amateur mushroom collector, this is probably the safest attitude.

What Is a Mushroom?

Mushrooms are members of a large group of nongreen plants called fungi. The so-called mushroom is actually the fruiting body of the fungus. The rest of the plant, which is seldom seen, consists of a mass of threadlike strands called hyphae.

Prepared by A.H. Epstein, extension plant pathologist, and Lois H. Tiffany, professor of botany and plant pathology.

These may be found growing in association with roots, bark, and heartwood of living trees, in dead wood, in animal dung, in the litter of fallen leaves and twigs and other plant parts on or in the soil.

Mushrooms appear in a variety of situations. Some are found in rings in grass pastures or lawns, others are found in massive clusters on tree trunks or in clumps around decaying tree stumps. They have been found growing in well traveled paths, and occasionally they may even force their way up through asphalt paving.

The mushroom is the fruiting body upon which the spores (reproductive units) of the fungus are borne. It typically consists of a variously shaped cap borne at the end of a stalk. The spores are borne in vast numbers on tiny specialized cells arranged in a layer (hymenium) on both sides of thin plates (gills) or lining the inner surface of tubes on the underside of the cap. The gills usually radiate out from the point of attachment or from the stalk to the edge of the cap.

The forms with spores borne in tubes have a more or less smooth, porous layer on the underside of the cap. The top of the cap may be smooth, shaggy or rough textured, and variously colored, depending on the kind of mushroom. This may also be influenced by the environment and substrate upon which the fungus is growing.

QUIZ

What do you know about mushrooms?

by John and Molly Daugherty

THERE IS A YUGOSLAVIAN LEGEND that Wotan, riding a white horse through the woods on Christmas night, was chased by devils. The red and white foam which fell to the ground from his horse's mouth sprang into Fly Agaric mushrooms—their red caps flecked with white. Mushrooms are common fleshy fungi belonging to the class Basidiomycetes. This class differs from all other fungi in the way it produces its spores on the outside of a specialized spore-producing body.

What do you know about mushrooms?

1. Various organisms, including mushrooms, produce light as a result of internal oxidative changes. This property is known as bioluminescence.

Which one of these mushrooms glows in the dark—is bioluminescent?

2. The taste of mushrooms varies. It can be mild, sweet, sour, peppery, or acrid. Taste, however, is not a safe guide to determine whether mushrooms are poisonous or safe to eat. According to some authorities, practically all edible mushrooms are good raw, some more than others.

Which one of these mushrooms has a peppery or acrid taste?

3. The odors of mushrooms vary greatly. Some are fragrant, but others are nauseating.

In a warm room, which of these mushrooms smells like a skunk?

4. Making a spore print is an aid in identifying mushrooms. Mushrooms having gills may be divided into groups according to spore color: white, yellow-brown, pink, purple-brown, and black. The largest group is white.

Which one of these mushrooms is black-spored?

5. Edible species of mushroom outnumber the poisonous, but the hazard of picking a poisonous one among the many edible ones exists. A few species are deadly, while others may be poisonous but not fatally so. Some mushrooms are mildly poisonous to some people, but not to others.

Which one of these has caused the greatest number of fatal poisonings?

New Hartford Student Selected To Attend Hugh O'Brian Seminar

An area high school sophomore has been selected to attend the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation (HOBY) Iowa East Leadership Seminar. He will join more than 175 other young leaders representing as many high schools from throughout Iowa who will meet June 3-5 in Cedar Rapids.

Nominated to attend HOBY is Timothy McCloud, Dike-New Hartford High School, son of Michael and Cecilia McCloud, New Hartford. Timothy was chosen based on his demonstrated leadership and potential for continued leadership growth.

HOBY Leadership Seminars bring together a select group of high school sophomores so that they can interact with groups of distinguished leaders in business, government, education and the professions to discuss present and future issues. The goal is to provide the youths an unique forum for learning about the American incentive system and democratic process and for broadening their understanding of their leadership potential and quest for self-development.

The Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation was established by the popular actor Hugh O'Brian following a visit to Africa where he was inspired by a meeting with Dr. Albert Schweitzer.

"One of the things Schweitzer said to me was that the most important thing in education was to teach youth people to think for themselves," O'Brian says. "From that inspiration, and with the support of others who believe in youth and the American dream, I started HOBY to seek out, recognize, develop and renew outstanding leadership potential among our nation's youth."

McClouds' Accept Position With Foundation For Foreign Study

Michael and Cecilia McCloud of New Hartford, have accepted a position with Educational Foundation for Foreign Study as International Exchange Coordinators according to Bill Friedow, Britt, Regional Coordinator for E.F.

EF Educational Foundation for Foreign Study is dedicated to furthering international understanding through language, education, and cultural exchange. Their goal is to promote international student exchange with the aim of encouraging cultural awareness and mutual respect between nations. E.F. Foundation sponsors high school homestay programs in the U.S., Canada, Europe, Australia, and New Zealand for teenagers from 27 countries. Nationwide, EF Foundation has 1,000 volunteers like the McClouds, who work with local high schools, host families, and foreign exchange students. If it weren't for volunteers like the McClouds, the program would not be successful.

Michael and Cecilia look forward to working with families and foreign students in the Dike-New Hartford, Cedar Falls, Waverly, and Grundy Center areas. They now have applications and are looking for host families for the 1999-2000 school year. If you would like to share your home for ten months and your heart for a lifetime with a teenager from a foreign country, call the McClouds at 319-983-2538.

TWO CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH THURSDAY

TRAGEDY ALSO RESULTED IN A
PROPERTY DAMAGE OF $12,-
000 TO $16,000

Cedar Falls, April 17.—Lives of Wayne McMullen, four and his sister Dorothy, two, were forfeited yesterday afternoon, in a fire which is supposed to have started when they played with matches in the barn on the farm in Beaver township, Butler county, operated by their father, Charles McMullen. Property damage is setimated at $12000 to $15000 resulted before the flames were controlled. Eight buildings and a silo burning to the ground. Only a sudden change in the wind made it possible to save the house occupied by the Mullen family and the owner of farm, Mrs. Louis Nissen.

Father Had Burned Brush

Remembrance of the brush fires they had seen their father start the day before is believed to have been responsible for the tragic death of the little ones. Mr. McMullen had been clearing the weeds and debris about the place by setting it afire and the children had been interested spectators.

Their mother washed yesterday and was busy about the house during the morning. Matches were in the kitchen near the stove she used for heating water and it is probable the older child had opportunity to take some.

Mrs. McMullen's attention was attracted by the cries of the children for "Mother," but so rapidly did the fire spread that it was impossible for her to reach them.

When Mrs. McMullen, who was in the house 125 feet from the barn noticed the flames, the structure was entirely ablaze and the forms of the children could be seen on the floor a few feet inside the door, near which had been a pile of straw before their efforts to amuse themselves had started the fatal fire.

The mother alarmed the neighbors whose response was as rapid as it could be, most of the men on the nearby farms being busy in the fields. Men and women formed a bucket brigade and worked frantically, but it was impossible to do more than to save the two residences and the bodies of the children could not be reached until the building in which they lay had been entirely consumed.

Moved to Farm Recently

The McMullen family are new tenants in the neighborhood, having moved to the farm six weeks ago from the vicinity of Janesville.

The parents, a brother and sister survive.

Mrs. Nissen carried protection in Danish Mutual Insurance society of Cedar Falls on all the buildings, but is unable to state the total, since her policies are kept in a safety deposit vault in town. Mr. McMullen also carried insurance. Protection in neither case will cover the loss they believe.

All of the buildings on the Nissen farm were in first-class condition. The barn was built in 1906 and the silo eight years ago. The structures destroyed, in addition to the barn, were hog house, feed shed, double corn crib, double poultry house, small shed, garage and silo.

In addition McMullen lost approximately 200 bushels of corn, some oats, six tons of hay, all of his harness except the set he was using in the field. Mrs. Nissen lost 100 bushels of corn.

The bodies of the children were brought to the Dahl chapel in Cedar Falls.

New Hartford—Pfc. Vernon McMullen of the Fifth marines, has just concluded a three-day leave visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McMullen, New Hartford. He arrived at Great Lakes naval hospital with 305 other casualties, all of whom were wounded on Iwo Jima.

McMullen

He worked on the beach under heavy mortar fire for three days and then went straight to the front lines, where he remained for 16 days. He was wounded in the arm by a Jap bullet. He said the Japanese had gardens on the island and that the marines enjoyed fresh tomatoes in the midst of battle.

Private McMullen volunteered in the marines a year ago before he had completed high school. A brother, Arthur, served 27 months in Alaska and is now stationed at Camp Rucker, Ala., with the medical corps.

pulled the mill house up to just south of Oak Hill Cemetery to use for a barn, and the millstone was used as a door step at their house.

In about 1936, the house burned and Carl Perrin retrieved the millstone and took it to his home and buried it for safe keeping.

In 1985, the New Hartford High School's Iowa History Class and Carl Perrin cleared the stone and placed it on the lawn of the New Hartford Community Building. Money from the Bicentennial and a donation from the Woman's Club helped buy a bronze plaque. Justin Nicklaus welded the plaque in place. The New Hartford Millstone is set for us to enjoy.

We will dedicate the mill stone in a short ceremony immediately following the Beaver Creek Days parade on August 12, 1989.

THE OLD GRIST MILLSTONE

New Hartford, Iowa

1989

In 1855, Titus Ensign bought 80 acres of land (at $1.25 an acre) in Section 33, Beaver Township, Butler County, Iowa, just ten miles west of Cedar Falls.

Titus built a log cabin and a saw mill, and platted a village with twelve square blocks (including a Public Square) and named the village New Hartford, for his former home in New Hartford, Connecticut.

A wagon train from Saratoga County, New York settled in and by 1895 there were sixteen families. The families were Titus Ensign, Charles Ensign, S.B. Ensign, G.W. Ensign, Robert Shaw, E.L. Shaw, E.M. Shaw, Nelson Childs, Dr. Joseph Castro, E.O. Stevens, William Jones, Martin Bailey, D.N. Root, Elijah Root, Solomon Lashbrook, and Lansing Morrison.

There was soon a blacksmith shop, shingle factory, saw mill, store, saloon, doctor, post office, Sunday school, church meetings and singing school, but one important item was missing. There was no grist mill.

Grain, an important food item, had to be ground by hand grinders or implements crude and simple much as the Indians had used. Mills operated by horse power were slow. Grinding a sack of corn with "Ebenezer's old mare" was said to be the work of a full day.

The nearest grist mill was the Overman Mill at Cedar Falls, said to be one of the best in the state. The Overman grist mill and saw mill were water powered, but seldom in operation at the same time. Running one or the other, separately, prevented saw dust from being mixed with the flour.

Many times the miller's charge was a portion of the grain. The news gathered at the mill was a welcome bonus.

The history of Butler County, 1883 states: "In 1856 and 1857 there was but little advancement in matters on account of financial stringency." And before financial matters bettered, war between the states broke out and the young men were off to fight.

Sometime soon after Eliphalet Ensign came back from war in 1864, he set up a grist mill on the north side of Beaver Creek, east of the Broadway Bridge, powered by water.

Jacob Swisher, in his 'Iowa, Land of Many Mills' reports that dams such as was probably used by the Ensigs was built of brush and logs. It was made by cutting brush and tree tops and placing them in the water with the butts upstream. The first layer of brush and tree tops was weighted down with clay and stone, then another layer of brush was applied, the butts farther upstream, so as to give the limbs a steeper pitch, and this was weighted down as before.

By the 1860's, millstones were available in St. Louis, and some were even made from "Nigger Heads". However the Ensign family remembered that the New Hartford stone was shipped from France.

In 1855, Titus Ensign bought 80 acres of land (at 1.25 an acre) in Section 33, Beaver Township, Butler County, Iowa, just ten miles west of Cedar Falls.

Titus built a log cabin and a saw mill, and platted a village with twelve square blocks (including a Public Square) and named the village New Hartford, for his former home in New Hartford, Connecticut.

A wagon train from Saratoga County, New York settled in and by 1885 there were sixteen families. The families were Titus Ensign, Charles Ensign, S.B. Ensign, G.W. Ensign, Robert Shaw, E.L. Shaw, E.M. Shaw, Nelson Childs, Dr. Joseph Castro, E.O. Stevens, Wm. Jones, Martin Bailey, D.N. Root, Elijah Root, Solomon Lashbrook, and Lansing Morrison.

There was soon a blacksmith shop, shingle factory, saw mill, store, saloon, Doctor, Post office, Sunday School, Church meetings and singing school, but one important item was missing. There was no grist mill. Grain, an important food item had to be ground by hand grinders or implements crude and simple much as the Indians had used.

Mills operated by horse power were slow. Grinding a sack of corn with "Ebenezer's old mare" was said to be the work of a full day.

The nearest grist mill was the Overman Mill at Cedar Falls, said to be one of the best in the state, but not always grinding because the Overman grist mill and saw mill were water powered, but seldom in operation at the same time. Running one or the other, separately, prevented saw dust from being mixed with the flour.

Many times the miller's charge was a portion of the grain. The news gathered at the mill was a welcome bonus.

The history of Butler County, 1883 states: "In 1856 and 1857 there was but little advancement in matters on account of financial stringency." And before financial matters bettered, war between the states broke out and the young men were off to fight.

Sometime soon after Eliphalet Ensign came back from war in 1864, he set up a grist mill on the north side of Beaver Creek, east of the Broadway Bridge, powered by water.

Jacob Swisher, in his 'Iowa, Land of Many Mills' reports that dams such as was probably used by the Ensigns was built of brush and logs. It was made by cutting brush and tree tops and placing them in the water with the butts upstream. The first layer of brush and tree tops was weighted down with clay and stone, then another layer of brush was applied, the butts farther upstream, as to give the dam a steeper pitch, and this was weighted down as before.

had to be taken that the surfaces were level and parallel to each other. American millstones, unlike the French product, were usually chiseled from single blocks of stone."

The family remembers that Charles Eliphalets teen-aged son was sent to close one of the doors of the mill-house and caught his hand. The hand had to be amputated.

By the 1880's flour was being milled and shipped to small towns in barrels from mills in Cedar Falls, Waterloo and Cedar Rapids. The small grist mills were left with little to do. The Ensigns pulled the mill house up to just south of Oak Hill Cemetery to use for a barn, and the mill stone was used as a door step at their house.

In about 1936, the house burned and Carl Perrin retrieved the mill-stone and took it to his home and buried it for safe keeping.

In 1985, the New Hartford Iowa History Class and Carl Perrin cleaned the stone and placed in on the lawn of the New Hartford Community Building. Money from the Bicentennial and a donation from the Woman's Club helped buy a bronze plaque. Justin Nicklaus welded the plaque in place. The New Hartford Mill stone is set for us to enjoy.

We will dedicate the mill stone in a short ceremony immediately following the 10 o'clock Beaver Creek Days parade August 12, 1989.

Millstone Stands as Historic Marker

By MARK EVANS

In front of the New Hartford Community Building sits the millstone from New Hartford's first industry, the gristmill.

Last year's second semester Iowa History class undertook the responsibility of obtaining the millstone from the previous owner to display it as a part of new Hartford's history.

Curt Petersen, instructor of the Iowa History class, said the millstone itself was imported from France, where it was originally ground to its original shape. It was then cut into 19 pieces for shipment to the United States and to the New Hartford mill for installation.

In the 1800's, when it was in operation, the mill served as the New Hartford Cooperative where farmers took their corn, wheat and most other grains to be ground, but not sold because the early farmer only grew enough for his own family.

Junior Vi Gersema, who was part of the class and who has been elemental in the restoration of the stone, said the mill was located on the northwest corner of the current school property where there was a channel of water to turn the mill's mechanisms.

Petersen said the restoration committee would like to place a plaque in front of the stone telling what it is and where it came from. Estimated cost of this project is $100, Petersen said, and donations are needed to complete this goal.

ump was out and the city had hard time finding a different one.

Last week Don Huisman measured the time it took to fill a five-gallon bucket of water that is being lost at the swimming pool. Gary Hinders calculated the water loss to 1,000 gallons per day. The pool could be filled more than 10 times with the water lost during the summer.

There is some evidence of leaking on exterior. Reports indicate that excavations for pipe repairs show exterior walls may be in poor condition. Concrete decks in fair to poor condition. Continued patching, exterior piping needs repair, will compound the problem.

The report concluded that based on the age, size and condition of the pool, it does not seem economically feasible to provide a new filtering system and repair the recirculation system with subsequent deck replacement. As a minimum this cost is estimated at an ultimate $100,000 plus expenditures. This would still leave the existing steel walls, which are in doubtful condition, as well as the floor joint leakage, and possible pool drain problems.

NEW HARTFORD

New Hartford was named by its founder, Titus Ensign, after the city of New Hartford, Conn.--the former home of his family. An entry in the books of the County Recorder, dated February 6, 1855, shows that Titus Ensign purchased 80 acres--the east half of the northeast quarter of section 33, for $1.25 an acre, paid in cash. This is the land on which the eastern part of the present town is located.

Actually, a Mr. Chapman of Cedar Falls was an earlier arrival. He pre-empted the land on which the town is located in the spring of 1854 and built a little log house on the land in August of that year.

That same month, Titus and S.B. Ensign arrived here from Castile, New York, and made arrangements to build a mill. They bought the land and received permission from Mr. Chapman to enter it, which annulled his pre-emption claim. In January, 1885, they returned to the site and, according to the previous arrangements, erected a mill on the Beaver just north of where the old creamery now stands. The same year they built a log house east of it, on land which must now be a part of the school grounds. It served as a bachelors' hall for the early settlers.

TITUS ENSIGN

In the fall of 1855, the town of New Hartford was platted by Titus Ensign, and surveyed by the county surveyor, Mr. Holmes. The original plat consisted of eight blocks and one public square; each block divided into eight lots, four by eight rods. In the spring of 1856, Judd Bradley made an addition to the village of three blocks on the north side. On the fourth day of June, 1856, the plat of New Hartford was filed for record. The streets running east and west were called Main, Water, and Saratoga (starting from the south side). These streets still bear the same name. The public square is the town park.

D.N. Root and Elijah Root of Orleans County, New York, arrived in the fall of 1856, and bought the west half of the northeast quarter of section 33 from Solomon Lashbrook. They platted it as Roots Addition to New Hartford. During the winter of 1856-57, an election was held at Martin Bailey's store to vote on the annexation of this addition. The judges of this election were Robert Shaw, Lansing Morrison, and Dr. Casto; clerks were Martin Bailey and Charles Ensign. The vote was unanimously in favor of it.

D.N. Root then visited the eastern states with a "site of the town on paper", and sold a number of lots, and other parties soon became interested in the welfare of the growing village.

FIRST HOMES

The first two houses built in the village were constructed in the spring of 1856. Charles Ensign had the first deed issued after the village was laid out, and built his house on lots 6 & 8, block 6. It was ready for occupancy about the middle of May, when he brought his family from Waverly to occupy it--thus being the first resident of New Hartford. S.B. Ensign's home was built on lots 1 & 3, block 11.
