

COMMISSIONERS

This is the governing body of the Warren Soil and Water Conservation District who meet at least once a month to conduct business affairs such as state cost share program, the soil loss complaint procedure, and other programs as they are developed. The commissioners know the land and water conditions of the district and the practices required for conserving and developing its natural resources. The reward for serving as a commissioner is the satisfaction of making a valuable contribution to the future welfare of the district and the state.
