

New Office Building

1-17-67

Pictured above is the new government office building that is being constructed at the intersection of Dodge and Locust Streets in Bloomfield. The new building, to be completed in early summer, will house the ASCS office, the Extension office, the FHA office and the Soil Conservation Service office. It is being built by William Dixon Construction.

5-18-67

Verle Arnold, work unit conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service, is shown transacting business via the telephone from his spacious office in the new agricultural building. The Soil Conservation Service is one of four offices located in the building.

Open House 5-21-67